of one of the 20th century's most prolific architects John Russell Pope 1873-1937 was an architect of tradition and a master of proportion, massing, and scale. Drawing on a personal palette rich in historic precedents from ancient Greece to colonial America, Pope created original and refined designs that embodied the aspirations of the design advocacy group. Finding good in what's old.

May 22nd, 2020 - as I did the research and writing for my recent book on the architect John Russell Pope, Mastering Tradition: The Residential Architecture of John Russell Pope, I discovered that this designer was not a slave to tradition.
